

...to see the changes since my involvement with QIA's Persist, Progress and Achieve (PPA) programme.

PPA provided me with different ways to help my learners at Action Acton 'stick with it' so that more of them are passing their Literacy, Numeracy and ESOL Skills for Life qualifications.

If you want to help your learners to stay the course, visit:

www.qia.org.uk
www.stickwithit.org.uk

Marcin Lewandowski
Learning Centre Coordinator,
Action Acton, Ealing, London
www.actionacton.com

To: Teachers of literacy,
language and numeracy
In: Classrooms, workshops,
local authorities, training
centres, community centres,
in prisons and young offender
institutions and at work
ENGLAND
UK

The Quality Improvement Agency (QIA) champions and facilitates excellence and innovation in the further education system in England. It helps those who teach to be better at what they do - and those who lead and manage to support this improvement.

In 2007 more than 15,000 people benefited from QIA-funded Skills for Life provision, helping them to raise achievement for all learners.

To find out how QIA can help you in 2008, go to: www.qia.org.uk and join the Excellence Gateway community at <http://excellence.qia.org.uk>

Portrait: Erin Grodnick